

FROM PRISON TO OBLIVION

EX-GEN. STOESEL DOOMED TO SELF-EFFACEMENT.

Liberation of Port Arthur's Commander and Ex-Admiral Negoboff—The Last Morning of Imprisonment—Czar to Figure in a Military Spectacle.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—Ex-Gen. Stoesel and ex-Admiral Negoboff are free men again and are consigned to oblivion. The Czar has closed the last chapter of the story of defeat as secretly and as completely as he can.

The two broken men are at large somewhere in this city under a pledge of self-effacement and warned against yielding to the temptation to fight their battles over again. Stoesel is advised, and it would apply equally to his brother in misfortune, to grow a different kind of beard, wear smoked spectacles, change his name to Schmidt and go abroad and live for the rest of his days in some unfrequented sequestered spot.

Their liberation from the Troubetzkof bastion of the Peter Paul fortress was a curious spectacle. It was made amid the joy bell ringing of the Czar's birthday celebrations. The two men had been told over night that the act of grace was signed. Each was originally sentenced to death for surrendering his command to the enemy; the condemnation was reduced by the Czar to ten years confinement in a fortress, and the pardon came when Stoesel had served sixteen months and Negoboff two years.

Mme. Stoesel received at breakfast the message that her husband would be free to join her at noon. She sent a baggage van to the fortress at 10 o'clock to fetch her belongings—a sofa, table, some chairs, books, clothes and rugs. Negoboff had already collected his goods—only a kit bag of clothes and a score or so of his favorite books.

Stoesel, who had two apoplectic strokes since he entered the fortress, could not pack for himself; he moves with difficulty and cannot bend. He wore a dark civilian suit, which he had been too excited to button without help. Col. Ivanischin, governor of the prison, called on the two and asked them to accompany him for the last time to the morning service in the fortress church. Negoboff said that he had not strength enough to go; he had not slept at all during the night.

"I don't want the public to stare at me," he said. "How do I know that I won't cry like a child?" Stoesel said he felt very well and would go.

Negoboff's son came about 11 o'clock and helped his father to pack. Mme. Stoesel several times made the sign of the cross over her husband and put a soft hat on his head. He walked slowly to church, leaning on a stick, but showed a very happy demeanor.

A messenger brought him a telegram. It was a message of congratulation from Grinkewitch, who had been his commander of the Eagle's Nest at Port Arthur. Then Stoesel said to another well wisher: "I was never so happy as now. When Gen. Komaroff came to me yesterday afternoon and announced the act of grace Negoboff and I could scarcely utter a word. I looked at my companion and saw the tears come down his cheeks; then I noticed that I was weeping myself. I really did not believe that we would be free so soon. When I saw mention of our pardon in the newspapers I said to Negoboff: 'I don't believe it. We'll have to sit here another year or two.'"

"After I have been to church I'll come back and see if my wife has packed everything. Then my friend Kaido will fetch me in his automobile. We shall stay with him for a time."

Negoboff was in the thrall of deep emotion. He paced quickly hither and thither in his six yard square cell. A field bed was fixed in the middle and an eating table on the wall. There was a large Venetian window and one could see across the garden the Neva, the Hermitage, the Winter Palace, the Admiralty and St. Isaac's Cathedral. While Stoesel's effects filled a van, Negoboff's were all packed in two small boxes.

"I have been here two years and a month," said Negoboff. "As you see I had every comfort. My cell is large, dry and warm. The windows look southward and give me plenty of light."

"We had plenty to eat. Stoesel and I had our meals together. We could walk as far as we liked in the garden. We had newspapers and books and we had tea whenever we wanted; and yet after all God preserve any one from this imprisonment!"

The midday cannon was fired in the fortress. "Now," said Negoboff, "I am a free citizen. I was told that at noon I am no longer a prisoner."

Col. Ivanischin entered the room in a few minutes with an account book which he laid on the table. Negoboff signed a statement that the eating had been in order and that the charges were correct. He received 22 rubles 28 kopecks saved out of the money allowed to him for food.

"That will give me a cab fare and let me get quick home," he said.

The parting with Ivanischin and the man servant was very heavy. Negoboff lit a cigarette and with his son walked out of the fortress and across the viaduct to Kamenostoff avenue, where he mounted a tramcar and rode home to the lodgings taken for him in the Fontanka. He has no private fortune, no pension, no rank and is not even eligible as an inmate for a sailors' home.

DREAMING ON WEDDING CAKE.

Modern Way Seems to Make Marriage More Than Ever a Lottery.

"My sisters," said Brother Claude, "are now busily dreaming on wedding cake."

"Three days ago we all went to a wedding and of course each of us got a nice little box of wedding cake, and every night since then sisters have been putting these boxes under their pillows and dreaming on them to see who they are going to marry."

"There is an old saying, you know, that marriage is a lottery, and from what my sisters tell me about the modern way of dreaming on wedding cake I should say that marriage is now a greater lottery than ever. It seems that the custom once was to put the cake under your pillow three nights in succession, and then the man you dreamed of two out of the three nights was to be your future husband."

That was the old, the simple way, before things had taken on their modern present day elaborate complications. In these days dreaming on wedding cake appears to be carried on like this:

"You take seven little slips of paper and on each of six of these you write the name of a suitor, leaving the seventh slip blank. So here you have six slips with names on and one blank slip, and now without looking at them you mix these slips all up together so that you won't know which is which, and then you put all seven slips together in an envelope."

"By this modern method of dreaming on wedding cake, with the envelope system, you dream on the cake seven nights in succession, and in the morning of each following day you draw a slip from the envelope, and the last slip left in the envelope after the seventh night's dreaming indicates your fate; if it's got a name on, why, that's the man you are going to marry; if it's the blank slip, why, then you are going to be an old maid."

"You see that by this method there is introduced a vastly greater amount of doubt and uncertainty, and the period of excitement, suspense and interest is very greatly prolonged; but while the old and simple way was certainly tamer, the modern way, though far more exciting and interesting, may be not without its disappointment in the end. Just see how it may work out:

"Among the men whose names you put on the six written slips there is pretty sure to be one whom you prefer to all the rest; but his may be the first name you draw out of the envelope after the first night's dreaming; thus, when putting him out of the question. On the other hand it might be that the first slip you draw out would be the blank, the old maid slip, and in this you would find perhaps reason for elation and self-congratulation."

"Again, the first slip drawn might be neither the blank nor the slip bearing the name of him you preferred, but a slip with the name of a man for whom you cared less; and so might the agony be day after day prolonged and growing all the time more harrowing, to the very end of the week."

"Such is the modern method of dreaming on wedding cake, as my sisters have so kindly explained to me. I feel pretty sure there is a reservation, if you don't like the way one week's dreaming comes out you can dream again, on another piece, that you got the next wedding you happen to attend."

CONTEST TO SUCCEED DIAZ

TWO CANDIDATES FOR VICE-PRESIDENT OF MEXICO.

The Winner Likely to Replace the Aged Mexican President Eventually—An Anti-American Issue in the Campaign—It Is Corral Against Reyes Now.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 5.—A contest which is regarded as equivalent to a campaign for the Presidency of Mexico is now in progress between Ramon Corral, the present Vice-President, and Gen. Bernardo Reyes, Governor of the State of Nuevo Leon. The election will not be held until next year.

President Diaz, who has agreed to accept the Presidency for another term of six years, will be 80 on September 15, 1910, and it can hardly be expected that he will live out his term. It is for this reason that much importance is attached to the election of a Vice-President.

The Vice-Presidency of Mexico was created by an amendment to the Constitution six years ago and Ramon Corral was the first man elected to the office. His election was more formal, as he was selected for the place by President Diaz, who is said to have had him in training with the view of making him his successor.

Vice-President Corral was recently renominated for the office on the ticket with President Diaz. The nomination was not unanimous, as some of the delegates to the convention insisted on voting for Gen. Reyes and others wanted to support José Y. Limantour, present Minister of Finance, for Vice-President, but Corral's adherents were in the majority and their candidate was nominated.

The nomination of Gen. Reyes for Vice-President has not been made in the usual convention form. He has been put up for the office by means of petitions signed by his friends and admirers all over the country. It was originally planned to make him a candidate for President, but when Diaz reconsidered his intention of not again being a candidate for the office it was decided that Reyes should run against Corral for Vice-President.

The anti-American issue promises to figure in the campaign. Supporters of Gen. Reyes are already making the charge that it was through Mr. Corral that E. H. Harriman obtained from the Mexican Government an unusually favorable concession for the railroad which he is building down the Pacific Slope of Mexico and that Mr. Harriman will draw from the public treasury of Mexico as a subsidy for building this road more than ten million dollars. It is alleged that he has other favors to ask of the Mexican Government and that he is lending his aid to bring about the election of Mr. Corral to another term as Vice-President and ultimately to elevate him to the Presidency.

Mr. Corral as Vice-President performs the duties of Minister of Interior and deals with questions in which many Americans, among them Mr. Harriman, are interested, but his friends deny that he has extended any unusual favors to any person. It is declared that President Diaz was directly responsible for the liberal subsidy granted to Mr. Harriman and his associates for building the Cananea, Yaqui River and Pacific Railroad down the Pacific Slope. Mr. Corral is a native of western Mexico and he has taken a deep interest in the development of that part of the country, but his official favors, his friends say, have been given alike to Americans and Mexicans.

It was only about a year ago that Mr. Corral was charged by his political antagonists with being rabidly anti-American in his madman's. Mr. Corral then grew out of the fact that several newspapers which were being published in the interest of Mr. Corral's candidacy for President were making bitter attacks upon Americans in Mexico. These attacks have ceased since President Diaz agreed to accept another term.

Another report in connection with the contest is that President Diaz is indifferent as to the success of Mr. Corral's campaign—in fact he is disposed to favor Gen. Reyes. It is said that Diaz has changed his mind as to the desirability of terminating in the near future the military control under which the country has been governed largely since he has assumed the office of Chief Executive. While upon the surface not much of the military hand has been seen, it has ruled nevertheless. Mr. Corral is unpopular with the army, and without its aid no ruler of Mexico would be badly handicapped in preserving order.

On the other hand, Gen. Reyes is the idol of the army. His bravery has been proved upon many battlefields. He also has the confidence and respect of a large part of the business element throughout the country.

It is said that Gen. Reyes personally deprecates the fact that the anti-American issue has been injected into the campaign. During the long period that he has been Constitutional Governor of the State of Nuevo Leon he has always extended a warm welcome to the investment of American capital in that Commonwealth. The capital of the State and the home of Gen. Reyes, the most Americanized city in Mexico. Many millions of dollars of American capital are invested there in smelters and other industrial enterprises.

While Gen. Reyes has made no public declaration on this subject, it is currently reported that he is strongly opposed to the Government's policy of owning a controlling interest in the chief railway systems of the country. It is admitted that Mr. Corral had nothing to do with the creation or inauguration of this policy, but he is said to indorse what has so far been done in that line.

It would not be surprising to some of the well informed politicians of Mexico if Mr. Limantour gets into the race for Vice-President. It is known that he has received letters and petitions from many parts of the country urging him to do so. He is responsible for the Government's ownership of railroads policy and it is said that he is ready and anxious to defend the Government's position on the subject.

Many Automobiles in Johannesburg.

From the Washington Post.

Johannesburg, South Africa, is the greatest city in the world for automobiles—ranked only behind New York City and London.

There are more automobiles in Johannesburg than there are in New York City or any other city of this country. The streets and outlying thoroughfares are thick with them and they are of all makes and of every other type of the best of the globe. I saw many American machines there, but the largest number come from France. The streets of Johannesburg are excellent for automobile, but the roads outlying are not good and many machines are wrecked in the runs.
